

Can't Work

When you feel that you can hardly drag through your daily work, and are tired, discouraged and miserable, take Cardui, the woman's tonic.

Cardui is prepared for the purpose of helping women to regain their strength and health.

Not by doping with strong drugs, but by the gentle, tonic action, of pure vegetable herbs.

Take CARDUI

The Woman's Tonic

Mrs. L. N. Nicholson, of Shook, Mo., writes: "Before I began to take Cardui, I was unable to do any work. I have taken 5 bottles and have improved very much. I can do the most of my housework now."

"I can't say too much for Cardui, it has done so much for me."

Editor Republican:

I have just received my copy of the Marshall Republican and note the stand you have taken on the Canadian free trade deal. I congratulate you on your position and believe you have ninety per cent of your Republican readers with you.

I was at the organization of the party in this county its chief cornerstone and up to Taft was for protection. If that is eliminated I guess I will be outside the breast works, for I am an old-fashioned Protection Republican of the Joe Cannon kind.

Fraternally,
W. B. Mullins.

Every well informed Saline county man knows who Mr. Mullins is and what he has been to the party, having been county chairman for many years. We appreciate his endorsement and know we'll have one friend when we are "out in the cold." But, like Mr. Mullins we must say that we are not alone and believe that fully ninety per cent of our farmers are opposed to reciprocity, regardless of politics.

Marshall Chautauqua

The work incident to providing and arranging the Chautauqua program for this season is drawing rapidly to a close. All of the attractions have been secured and it only remains to arrange and date them and the program will be built.

Mr. Vawter is in Chicago this week putting the finishing touches on the program booklet. It is to be a work of art surpassing in illustrations and color effects anything heretofore attempted.

In music, in oratory and in entertainment features the 1911 program is exceedingly strong. It would be a difficult matter to surpass previous programs in point of platform oratory—in fact in any line—but the music and entertainment features for this season will surpass anything we have had before.

Within a short time it will be possible to make definite announcements of a full program. It is a feast of reason and a flow of soul.

HAZEL RIDGE

It is very cool, but I guess every body knows that.

Boyd says the roads will get good in a few days.

Misses Ora and Ida Woolum entertained quite a number of young folks the other night.

Misses Nellie and Bessie Porter gave a social at their home Wednesday night.

Homer Pinkard took a very nice lady home last Sunday night. He says the roads are good for walking.

Mrs. Mollie Stephens and two daughters were at Mrs. Sand's last Sunday.

Lula and Fred Gaddberry spent Sunday with Mr. Porter's.

A Shot His Wife's Rebuke

John Freeman Drank, Went Home and Was Shot

Saturday's Kansas City Star contained the following account of the shooting of John Freeman by his wife, whose parents reside here:

John Freeman, 25 years old, broke his pledge to his wife that he "would never again touch liquor" yesterday. He returned to his home near Vance, Kas., suffering from its effects. The trouble which followed resulted in his wife, Lizzie, two years his junior, shooting him through the door of her room as he was beating it down with a sledge hammer.

Freeman was taken to Bethany Hospital, suffering from a wound in the body, the bullet having passed through the lungs. There also was a slight wound in a shoulder. Dr. C. M. Stenzen, who attended him, said he doubted if he would live more than twenty-four hours. Freeman refused to say who shot him, other than he was preparing to attend a lodge meeting near Bethel, Kas., when someone shot him through the door. Mrs. Freeman admitted the shooting.

Freeman attacked his wife last July with a blackjack. He beat her on the head, fractured her left arm, and drove her from the house. She spent the night in the woods near Vance and at daylight crawled to the home of a neighbor. She was taken to Bethany Hospital where she remained six weeks. Then Mrs. Freeman sued for divorce, asking the custody of their two children, John, 6 years old, and Rose, 3 years old.

One morning they both walked into the office of the clerk of the district court and stated the divorce suit was to be dismissed.

"John has promised never to touch liquor again and I have forgiven him," she said.

"Yes," John admitted, "it was liquor that caused it all, but it's all over now."

There was no further trouble at the Freeman home, which stands some way back from the Leavenworth Road, until last night.

"We have a cow that is hard to milk," Mrs. Freeman said. "John tied her to the barn and began to beat her with a club. I remonstrated. Then he threatened me. I ran into the house and upstairs into my room. We were alone in the house. I heard him coming upstairs. Then he began to beat on the door. I would not admit him. Then I heard heavy blows and the panel of the door gave way. There was a revolver and a shot gun in the room and I could see through the broken door that he had a sledge hammer. I knew he would kill me if he got in. That was why I fired. I did not aim; just fired. Then I heard him go downstairs. I was afraid to go down. I heard him telephone and a little later someone took him away in a motor car. Then I went down."

Albert Becker, sheriff, and Joe Taggart, prosecuting attorney, went to the Freeman home last night and after questioning Mrs. Freeman and seeing the broken door and injured cow decided not to arrest her. She remained alone in the farmhouse last night.

Following the first attack Freeman disappeared from Wyandotte county. Sheriff Becker searched for him and finally arrested him as he was leaving a train in Kansas City, Kas., several weeks later. A criminal proceeding growing out of that trouble still is on the court docket. The sheriff could not prevent the reconciliation, however, and the divorce suit was dismissed.

Mrs. Freeman is the daughter of John Bates, a farmer of Marshall Mo. They were married eight years ago. Freeman was reared near Vance on a farm adjacent to the one on which the shooting occurred.

"I do not believe we will prosecute the woman," Joseph Taggart, prosecuting attorney, said last night. "She appears to have acted in self-defense. Everyone we talked to in the neighborhood said that Freeman abused her whenever he drank."

Wesley Rohn and H. L. Woodward were down from Grand Pass Monday to pay off $500 on the indebtedness of the Edwards School house, of which district they are officers.

BUCK EYE

Miss Irvin was visiting on Buckeye Monday.

B. F. White and wife were shopping in Miami Tuesday.

H. C. Gaddberry's team ran off with the plow Wednesday but no damage was done.

John Woolum was shopping in Slater Saturday.

Boyd was out horse back riding with a lady friend one day last week.

Frank Pinkard and wife had quite an accident last Sunday. Their horse got scared at something in the road and broke their buggy but neither one of them were hurt.

Mrs. W. L. Pinkard and Mrs. B. F. White spent Saturday and Sunday with relatives in Cambridge.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pinkard were driving on Buckeye Sunday afternoon.

WOODSON

The farmers have been quite busy the past week planting corn. The storm of Saturday afternoon was quite destructive in this vicinity. The hail stones being nearly as large as an egg. We are sorry to know of some of our neighbors being in it.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Clark were callers at R. W. Finley's Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. James Scott, Sr., is on the sick list this week.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

The other night as Otto Ring ing was dying in New York City, the world's famous show with which he was connected, was giving a performance at Madison Square Garden. He was a great showman but the curtain was rung down on Otto Ringling while on goes the 'circus. What about it? Well, no matter who or what you are you should not get so swell-headed for this old circus of a world will go right on after you have made your last bow just as though it had never known you; any old time you are able to hear the old prompter, death, say, "all on for the last act!"

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

AS A RULE IT IS NOT A commendable policy to select breeding fowls or animals from among those which have been sold as culs at prevailing market prices. Occasionally an individual of some merit may be secured, but the risk is too great to make the experiment worth while.

As a general thing the farmers who are induced to go into the business of growing sugar beets fall short from six to ten tons per acre of getting the yield which the promoters of the sugar factory led them to expect. The land is either too thin, too dry, too wet or too low and never just right.

We ran across a fellow the other day who had become involved in several troubles with his neighbors and would have moved out of the neighborhood had not the fellow he hated the worst been the one who was most anxious to buy his place. This was too much for his Yankee makeup, and he still sticks it out.

A lady friend who has a crimson rambler of remarkable size and thrift has done nothing more along the line of covering it during the past few winters than to place over it an old cellar door. This kept it from thawing and freezing, which is the important thing to guard against in winter covering of outside plants and shrubs.

In buying land anywhere it is a sensible plan to get an opinion as to the worth of it from some person who is not financially interested in the sale of it or who does not own a piece of land in the same neighborhood that he is anxious to find a buyer for. So simple a precaution as this in the matter of land buying would save many a purchaser bitter disappointment and financial loss.

Timothy hay is pretty expensive bedding when it will sell at from $14 to $20 per ton, and yet there is a lot of it being used in this way because of too generous feeding when oat straw would answer just as well and cost but one-fourth as much. The waste in this one item where eight or ten horses are kept would offset the wage of a hired man at $24 per month. It's a leak that ought to be plugged up.

While the manure from an average dairy cow is worth from $18 to $32 a year, provided the manure is used so as to realize its maximum value, this fact should not encourage any dairy man in the keeping of animals which are little more than manure depositors. Better by all odds get cows which will make just as much fertilizer and at the same time give a return in milk and cream which will leave a good margin of profit on hand after their feed bill has been paid.

While the curfew law has much to commend it from the standpoint of practical results, it is a woefully inadequate community substitute for individual parental interest, solicitude and responsibility. Parents who care a continental for their children—boys or girls—will keep them from gadding the streets at night, and they will not need a town bell or gong to remind them of their duty. Parents who haven't cared a continental would better turn over a new leaf and try to give their children sufficient interest so that their children will prefer to stay at home rather than spend their time elsewhere.

As the silo comes more and more into use in the corn belt primarily for the purpose of providing a succulent ration for the dairy cows an increased interest is being taken in the use of silage as a fattening ration for feeding animals, particularly beefs. If good clover or alfalfa hay is available it will serve to balance the silage and corn which are fed. If not to be had the protein element should be provided in the shape of oil or cottonseed meal, which should be gradually increased in amount until a mature animal is getting about two and a half pounds per day. Silage fed steers fetch just as much as dry fed animals notwithstanding the claim sometimes made that their flesh is not quite so firm.

The postal authorities have lately been rounding up a lot of swindlers who have been using the mails in the disposal of bogus oil, mining and other stocks from which outlandish returns have been promised. In their next roundup it will be well if they landed another numerous company—the tribe of real estate fakers who through misrepresentation are raking in hundreds of thousands of dollars from unsuspecting people for land which never was worth anything and never will be as long as the sun shines. In one case of this kind which came under our notice recently land was palmed off on buyers as ideal for fruit culture when the meteorological records kept at the nearest station showed that the section has frosts most every night in the year. Besides, the glowing fruit yield records were stolen bodily from a booklet got out by a town in a beautiful valley on the other side of the mountains, where climatic conditions were entirely different. We are not on the fine points of what constitutes fraudulent use of the mails, but we have an idea it consists in sending false claims and misrepresentation through the mails for the purpose of separating folks from their hard earned money. If this diagnosis is correct the fellows who are promoting these bogus land enterprises would seem to be treading on nasty thin ice.
